NEWS AND TIPS FROM THE ST. LOUIS COUNTY LIBRARY SPECIAL COLLECTIONS DEPARTMENT

VOL. 7, No. 1—JANUARY 2014

FOR THE RECORDS

St. Louis turns 250 in 2014

As the story goes, in Feb. 1764, August Chouteau and a few dozen others founded a fur-trading post near the site where the Arch now stands, and thus St. Louis was founded. STL250 a volunteer-led, non-profit organization, was formed to commemorate the anniversary year and will act as Master of Ceremonies for a year-long, region-wide celebration throughout the 15-county bi-state region. The STL250 website <<http://www.stl250.org/>> includes a list of events, pages featuring St. Louis history, and information about how individuals and organizations can get involved .

The Special Collections Department is excited to announce that St. Louis County Library anticipates becoming a Celebration partner in STL250. Look for special library events highlighting St. Louis history in the coming year. PastPorts will feature articles focusing on St. Louis history with suggestions for further exploration in sources held by the Special Collections Department.

THIS MONTH IN ST. LOUIS HISTORY

JANUARY 1882

Beginning in January 1882, St. Louis and other cities across the United States were dealing with a smallpox epidemic. Residents of St. Louis were flocking to be vaccinated. By then, 80,000 people had been vaccinated and 4,000 deaths had occurred due to the virulent disease. Health Commissioner Francis was in charge of implementing the procedures for handling this epidemic. Most victims and some families of the infected children were removed to the "Pest-house" located south of Jefferson Barracks, a facility described in the Feb. 12, 1882 issue of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat on page 3.

The names of those who died from small-pox were listed in bulletins published in the newspaper. With few exceptions, most of those names do not appear in the St. Louis burial permit listings also found in the Globe. Bodies were interred at the Quarantine cemetery on the western part of the hospital compound.

More about the smallpox epidemic is described in articles published in the St. Louis Globe-Democrat for the following dates and pages (available on microfilm in the Special Collections Department):

Jan. 23, 1882, page 3	Jan. 29, 1882, page 6
Jan. 24, 1882, pages 3. 9	Feb. 1, 1882, page 11
Jan. 25, 1882, page 9	Feb. 4, 1882, page 9
Jan. 26, 1882, page 8	Feb. 12, 1882, page 9
Jan. 28, 1882, page 15

The Architecture of Maritz & Young: Exceptional Historic Homes of St. Louis by Kevin Amsler & L. John Schott

Missouri History Museum, 2013

With gracious residential boulevards, soaring cathedrals, and some of this country's first skyscrapers nestled amid bustling city blocks, St.

Louis is home to buildings designed by some of America's best-known architects, including Cass Gilbert and Louis Sullivan. But no single architectural firm has shaped the style of the city known as the Gateway to the West more than Maritz & Young. Starting at the beginning of the twentieth century, Raymond E. Maritz and W. Ridgely Young built more than a hundred homes in the most affluent neighborhoods of St. Louis, counting among their clientele a who's who of the city's most prominent citizens. The Architecture of Maritz & Young is the most complete collection of their work, featuring more than two hundred photographs, architectural drawings, and original floor plans of homes built in a variety of styles, from Spanish Eclectic to Tudor Revival. Alongside these historic images, Kevin Amsler and L. John Schott have provided descriptions of each residence detailing the original owners. Lovingly compiled from a multitude of historical sources and rare books, this is the definitive history of the domestic architecture that still defines St. Louis. (From the publisher).
