VOL. 6, NO. 8 — AUGUST 2014

History of Salem German Methodist Episcopal Church, Ballwin, Missouri

The following history was published in Jubiläumsbuch der St. Louis Deutschen Konferenz (E.C. Magaret, Freidrich Munz and Geo. B. Addicks; Cincinnati: Jennings and Graham, 1903; pp. 293–296; R 287.6 J91) and was translated by the Special Collections Department staff.

“The Lord has chosen that, which is nothing, to shame that, which is something.” Brother Heinrich Köneke, acting as district superintendent, sent Brother H. Hohmann to Ballwin, Mo., founded by Mr. Ball in 1837. He operated there from 1846 – 1848, building the first parsonage on land given by the city’s founder. In those years, cholera raged in St. Louis only 20 miles away , and the young congregation was decimated.

Meetings were held in homes until 1855, when steps were taken to build the first church. The present brick church was constructed in 1870 during the administration of Brother M. Röder at a cost of $5000 and is an ornament of the city. Nearby lies the cemetery, where many rest until the great day of Resurrection.

During the administration of Dr. Wm. Köneke, the parsonage with all the pastor’s belonging burned (1858), whereupon he built the second one. Under the administration of his brother, Brother Heinrich Köneke, the present parsonage was purchased from Brother Schelp. This beautifully situated church property stands at the high point of the city, and one enjoys from there a romantic view in all directions.

In the course of time, many members moved to the nearby city. The Lord has taken others to their eternal homeland. The congregation still counts about 100 members, however, including a strong Youth League and an active Women’s Photo of Salem German Methodist Episcopal Church as published in the 1903 Jubiläumsbuch. The church is now known as Salem United Methodist Church, located at 14825 Manchester Road in Ballwin.

Mission Society. In October 1901 the congregation was able to celebrate its 50th anniversary amid great praise and thanks to God. Brothers J.L.J. Barth, Dr. Addicks, Dr. Wm. Köneke and M. Röder spoke edifyingly, and the entire celebration was a great success.

Twenty-seven preachers have faithfully spread the seed of the Gospel here and have at times reaped rich harvests. Here also has the Gospel proved to be the power of God to sanctify those who believe. The following are the names of the congregation’s pastors: H. Hohmann, 1846 – 48; John Keck, 1848 – 1849; J. Hübner, 1849 – 1850; H. Ellerbeck, 1850 – 1851; C. Höch, 1851 – 1853; W. Rockert, 1853 – 1854; H. Tohle, 1854 – 1855; C. Bonn, 1855 – 1857;

H.D.Schmidt, 1857 – 1858; Wm. Köneke, 1853 – 1860; W. Floret, 1860 – 1862; G. Böfenz, 1862 – 1864; J. Kölle, 1864 – 1865; J. Glantz, 1865 – 1867; H. Meyer, 1867 – 1868; M. Röder, 1868 – 1871; Wm. Schwind, 1871 – 1873; K. Skär, 1873 – 1874; M. Dewein, 1874 – 1877; H. Pfaff, 1877 – 1879; Wm. Schwind, 1879 – 1881; Phil. Hehner, 1881 – 1884; H. Thomas, 1884 – 1887; H.F. Köneke, 1887 – 1890; H.C. Jacoby, 1890 – 1895; C.C. Stahlmann, 1895 – 1898; C. Günther, 1898 – 1903, who was followed by the present pastor, Wm. Fotsch.

The officers of the congregation are

P. Peterson, C. Wärther, H. Hauhart, and H. Bopp, stewards; and H. Bopp, C. Wärther, John Blank, P. Peterson, Seb. Bopp, Peter Schlüter, Dr. August Maisch, Georg Hartmann, and Fr. Schlüter, trustees.

The Rev. William Fotsch

The present pastor, Wm. Fotsch, was born on Oct. 8, 1847 in Unter-Hallau bei Schaffhausen, Switzerland, where he attended school and dedicated himself to architectural profession in Basel for three years. He was converted to the Lord there on March 4, 1866, a blessed experience that not only remained with him, but has strengthened and increased throughout the years.

On the first evening of his new life, he promised the Lord that he would dedicate his entire life to him without sensing the consequences of this oath. Soon an inner voice compelled him towards labor in the vineyard of the Lord, and he could not resist the call. He studied two years at the Basel Mission House under Josenhans and three years at the Preachers Seminary under Irion*. But since he did not find the desired nurture there, he visited the conference of the German Methodists upon coming to the United States.

Brother R. Havighorst, then superintendent of the Quincy District, received him into the church. With Brother Chas. Harms as an assistant, he was assigned to canvass the area from the north and east of Peoria to Fairbury, Ill. After entering the conference, he served Chandlerville, Ill., 1872 – 1873; Des Moines and Polk City, 1873 – 1874; Cottleville, Mo., 1874 – 1875; and Lake Creek, 1875 – 1877, where he built a church and held two camp meetings blessed with many conversions. Then followed Eudora, Kan., 1877 – 1878; and Petersburg, Ill., 1878. Later he worked three years in Rock Island, Ill., four years in Nauvoo, Ill., in Farmington two years, and in Desoto, Mo., three years. After that he was active for five years in Brighton, three in Mt. Vernon, Mo., and two years in Steinhagen, Mo. He then relocated to his present field of labor in Ballwin, Mo., in 1903 where he has worked in blessing and with success.

The seminary was operated by the German Evangelical Synod of North America and was a predecessor of the present-day Eden Theological Seminary in Webster Groves and now affiliated with the United Church of Christ.

THIS MONTH IN SAINT LOUIS HISTORY

August 29, 1904

1904 Olympic Games

Officially known as the “Games of the Third Olympiad,” the third Olympics in modern times and the first hosted in the U.S.A took place in St. Louis, Aug. 29 – Sept. 3, 1904 in conjunction with the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. According to George R. Matthews’s book, America’s First Olympics: The St Louis Games of 1904, athletes from eleven countries and four continents competed in “state-of-the-art facilities, including a ten-thousand seat stadium, and gymnasium equipment donated by sporting goods magnate, Albert Spalding.” Track and field competitions were held in one of the first concrete and steel stadiums ever built, the present Francis Field on the Washington University campus. It was also the first modern Olympics to award medals.

St. Louis was not the originally-planned venue. In 1901, the International Olympic Committee (IOC) chose Chicago to host the games in 1904. Missouri Governor David Francis had lost St. Louis’s bid to host the 1893 World’s Fair to Chicago. As President of the St. Louis World’s Fair, Francis was determined to make the St. Louis Fair, originally scheduled for 1903, the greatest ever. When the Fair was postponed until 1904, Francis convinced IOC to change the venue to St. Louis as part of the Fair.

Although the event was generally considered a great success, it was marked by scandal and what would today be considered outrageous incidents. For example, an athletic event called Anthropology Days, featured participants from “remote cultures” competing in events designed to demonstrate and compare the athletic prowess of various racial groups. The 1931 memoirs of IOC president Pierre de Courbertin called the 1904 games the “forgotten Olympics, the failed Olympics” and included slanderous descriptions of events leading up to and surrounding the games. Other writer describe the difficulties caused by the steamy St. Louis summer weather, unpaved streets, and the challenges caused by inadequate transportation.

Ulster to America: The Scots-Irish Migration Experience, 1680 – 1830

Warren R. Hofstra, editor
University of Tennessee Press,
2012 | 263 pages
R 973.0491 U46

In Ulster to America: The Scots-Irish Migration Experience, 1680 – 1830, editor Warren R. Hofstra has gathered contributions from pioneering scholars who are rewriting the history of the Scots-Irish. In addition to presenting fresh information based on thorough and detailed research, they offer cutting-edge interpretations that help explain the Scots-Irish experience in the United States. In place of implacable Scots-Irish individualism, the writers stress the urge to build communities among Ulster immigrants. In place of rootlessness and isolation, the authors point to the trans-Atlantic continuity of Scots-Irish settlement and the presence of Germans and Anglo-Americans in so-called Scots-Irish areas. In a variety of ways, the book asserts, the Scots-Irish actually modified or abandoned some of their own cultural traits as a result of interacting with people of other backgrounds and in response to many of the main themes defining American history.

Organized in chronological and migratory order, this volume includes contributions on specific U.S. centers for Ulster immigrants: New Castle, Delaware; Donegal Springs, Pennsylvania; Carlisle, Pennsylvania; Opequon, Virginia; the Virginia frontier; the Carolina backcountry; southwestern Pennsylvania, and Kentucky. Ulster to America is essential reading for scholars and students of American history, immigration history, local history, and the colonial era, as well as all those who seek a fuller understanding of the Scots-Irish immigrant story.—Publisher

Sustainable Genealogy: Separating Fact From Fiction in Family Legends

by Richard Hite
Genealogical Publishing, 2013 | 110
R 929.1 H675S

There are a lot of textbooks that describe how to find your ancestors; this new one by Richard Hite clarifies how not to. In short, Sustainable Genealogy explains how to avoid the traps many family historians can fall into. Whether it's a proud family legend, a venerable publication, or the claims of an Internet family tree, the unsubstantiated genealogical source is like a house of sticks before the Big Bad Wolf—it won't stand up. As Mr. Hite demonstrates in this collection of case studies, many are the "oral traditions that have fallen by the wayside under the lens of careful research in primary sources and more recently, DNA testing."—Publisher

Against the Peace and Dignity of the State: North Carolina Laws Regarding Slaves, Free Persons of Color, and Indians.

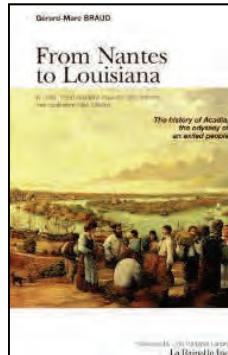

By William L. Byrd

Heritage Books, 2007 | 490 pages

R 342.756 B995A

The evolution of North Carolina's Slave Codes begins in 1669, and for the most part, ends in 1862. Nestled within those years was an ever-growing number of new laws enacted by the North Carolina General Assembly, the purpose of which was to control the great numbers of not-always-docile slaves in the Colony of North Carolina, and later, the State of North Carolina. There were insurrections, uprisings, and runaways; all of which were crushed in the end. Some slaves were treated fairly, and others were treated brutally. Slavery in the South was a perfect example of man's inhumanity to man. The North Carolina Slave Codes speak for themselves. A Chronology of Laws and full-name and subject indexes augment this valuable work.

From Nantes to Louisiana: The History of Acadia, the Odyssey of an Exiled People

By Gérard-Marc Braud, Translated by Julie Fontenot Landry

La Rainette, 1999 | 127 pages

R 976.3 B285F

In this work, Gérard-Marc Braud traces the history of Acadia and the Acadian people from the first colonists in 1604 until the "Grand Dérangement," that is to say, the deportation of about 12,000 Acadians, beginning in 1755: men, women, and children exiled against their will, even forcibly repatriated by the English authorities.

Next he retraces the Acadian resettlement in France: the welcome in the ports of Cherbourg, St. Malo and Morlaix, the dispersion in Brittany and Poitou, then the regrouping of hundreds of families in Nantes in 1775. Among the Acadians who moved to Nantes, 1,600 embarked for Louisiana in 1785 aboard seven ships.

The author offers previously unpublished information on the life and the means of existence of these Acadians, established at Nantes but always holding onto their “American dream” and eager to live a new adventure. In addition, he completes his story with appendices that will fascinate the descendants of these deported Acadians, descendants curious about the history of their ancestors and eager to find their roots.—Book jacket
